DISCUSSION OF PHILOSOPHICAL METHOD

Problem: Is there a method proper to philosophy, distinct from the method of the other sciences? Is this method applicable to empirical data? How does it differ from the methods of the other sciences dealing with the empirical world? Does this imply also a difference in data? Does the method limit the data? What is this philosophical method?

Panelists: Gordon E. Clark, Butler University, Chairman
Lewis A. Hennigar, Anderson College
Robert J. Kreyche, St. Joseph's College
Brief comments by the panelists and then general discussion

2:00 Afternoon Session of the Junior Division, separately or with the Senior Division, according to the choice of the Junior Division.

St. Joseph's College (Collegeville) lies just outside the southern limits of Rensselaer, Indiana. US 231 and Ind. 53 pass through the College grounds. The Library Building is the large building on the right of the main driveway facing Highway 53.
